PITTSBURG, Nov. 25.—Joe Villano, 19 year old Italian of Uniontown, who was tried in criminal court this week charged with participating in the murder of James Krache, garage proprietor of Penn township, was convicted of second degree murder Friday afternoon. The jury had been out 22 hours, returning a verdict at 3:20 o'clock before Judge J. McF. Carpenter.

Villano's second degree conviction was obtained on almost exactly the same testimony that convicted Elmer Johnson of Connellsville an accomplice of murder in the first degree a week ago. The two men, together with Paul Agresti, are said to have held up and attempted to rob Krache, Villano and Johnson trying when Krache attempted to get his revolver.

The shooting took place in 1921 at the garage which is located at the junction of Frankstown and Saltsburg roads. Agresti, who was not in the garage, but who waited on the road, testified against Johnson and Villano. It was proven that Villano's bullet struck Krache in the head, penetrating the brain, while Johnson's entered the chest.

Villano claimed that Krache fired at him and that he returned the fire in self defense, believing at the time that Johnson had been killed. Villano will be sentenced later.

BLOW MAY HAVE CAUSED DEATH OF PRINCE, BELIEF

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 25.—The body of Frederick W. Prince of New York, found dead in the hall of an apartment house here early Wednesday under mysterious circumstances, bears the marks of a blow struck against the jawbone, two inches to the right of the chin. This was announced by county physicians today as having been revealed in a post mortem examination yesterday.

Following the post mortem the physicians said no marks of a blow had been discovered and said today that yesterday's discovery was kept from the public to permit it to detectives to follow clues arising out of the theory that Prince was slain.

Wesley Pett, husband of the woman upon whom Prince and a party of friends called at the apartment, is being held by the police pending a further investigation. Pett returned home unexpectedly, it is said, and broke into the room where a party is said to have been in progress.

The physicians refused to announce whether the blow they say Prince received would have been sufficient to cause death.

SATURDAY EVENING, NOV. 25, 1922

WILLIAM H. THOMAS,

The sudden and unexpected death of William H. Thomas, affectionately known by hosts of cordial friends in this vicinity and among the employees of the company he had served so long and faithfully, as "Will" or "Bill" Thomas, occasions regret that will be more than momentary. Possessed of those qualities of mind and heart which invited and sustained intense loyalty on part of his intimate associates, Mr. Thomas never, by word or deed, brought anything but cheerfulness, hope and courage into the lives of other persons.

Interested in all that pertained to the advancement of the West Side, which was his home for many years, Mr. Thomas gave freely of his time and was unceasing in himself in his duties as citizen and public servant. As one of the protectors and founders of the Greenwood Methodist Episcopal Church, the success of this undertaking was a matter very close to his heart and almost constantly in his thoughts. Those who know best what he did to make it possible for the members of this denomination to get under way the building of a church home on the West Side, will gladly accord to the faith, energy and persistence of Mr. Thomas a large measure of the credit for the progress already made.

To his associates in this work and a great company of admirers in every day life, his passing from activity at maturity becomes a very deep bereavement. To the community as a whole the loss of a man of the type Mr. Thomas exemplified in his life and service among us, his death causes all to feel that we have been deprived of one of our most estimable and worthy citizens.

STATE INDEBTEDNESS.

In yesterday's issue of The Courier there was published an exhaustive article dealing with the bonded indebtedness of the several states of the union, which it will be interesting and profitable for every taxpayer to read and study with care.

The article presented much information as to how and for what purposes the 48 states have piled up their bonded indebtedness aggregating $1,071,506,981, or almost $43,000,000 per capita, or the debt of the federal government prior to the World War. On the basis of population the debt of the states means that each inhabitant would have to contribute $10.18 in order to discharge it. Based on the population of the United States in 1913 the per capita share of the national debt was $16.40. Having been increased to $23-$24,000,000 by the war, the national debt is now about $226 per capita, or more than 20 times the per capita of state debt.

In total amount New York leads all other states with $267,784,000 in outstanding obligations. Massachusetts second with $138,049,134; California third with $72,683,000; Pennsylvania fourth with $50,658,820; South Dakota fifth with $47,700,000.

Just what these and other state debts mean to the individual inhabitants thereof is better represented by the per capita average than by the total amount. Thus, in South Dakota, with a population of only $36,000, the per capita debt is $15.02, or three times what it is in New York with a population of 10,385,000. In Massachusetts with a population of 8,153,000, or less than half Pennsylvania's $8,720,000, the capital debt is $5.83, as compared with $5.31 in the Keystone state. Twenty-eight other states have a greater per capita debt than Pennsylvania.

These comparisons show how wide of the truth were some of the allegations made during the recent campaign, that the "crushing burden" of Pennsylvania's indebtedness. Even more clearly is the comparative lightness of our state's debt shown by the ratio of indebtedness to the assessed valuation of taxable property in the states. Oregon, with a property valuation one-seventh of that of Pennsylvania, has an indebtedness equal to 4.18 per cent, the highest ratio of all the states. Ranking seventh in such a list is New York's debt of $267,784,000 to but 1.26 per cent of its $14,892,736,000 assessed valuation, while Pennsylvania, having $1,273,242,000 debt, is 26th on the list with a ratio of less than one-half per cent.

Since the larger part of state indebtedness has been incurred in the promotion of internal improvements, highways absorbing 34.2 per cent, waterways and harbors 20 per cent, miscellaneous improvements 9.5 per cent, agricultural aid 4.1 per cent, public buildings and welfare 1.9 per cent. Seven states have issued a total of $120,022,000, or 12.1 per cent of the aggregate state debt, in bonds to pay adjusted compensation to their sons who served the nation in the World War. In refunding maturing bonds and other obligations the states have expended $119,557,513, or 11 per cent.

The institution which compiled this information observes that although state debts, like that of the national government, were increased by the war, and even now are growing instead of diminishing, there is greater soundness in the methods of financing and more conservatism in debt administration.

This statement may be entirely true, from the standpoint of the professional observer, but what the taxpayers are interested in knowing is what is going to be done by our state and national legislatures in the way of halting the tendency toward still more frequent resort to bond issues or a redaction of taxation to such rates as can be paid without imposing hardships on people out of all proportion to the increases in their resources to provide for supporting, rearing and educating their families.

If, as he says, George Clemenceau came to America to invite discussion, the visiting Frenchman is certain to be accommodated, judging from the remarks visitors to the Senate chamber overheard these days.

High School Meets Dunbar Twp. on Gridiron Today

Cokers Prepared to Make Big Score Against Their Visitors.

LAST GAME NEXT WEEK

The Connellsville High School football season is nearing a close—only two more games, one today, and the other on Thanksgiving remaining on the schedule.

In spite of the fact that only a few more days on the gridiron remain, the attendance at practice is still holding up, which speaks well for the stuff of which the scrubs are made up. There will likely be enough men for putting three teams on the field on Thanksgiving and all will be equipped for action.

The game scheduled for this afternoon is with the Dunbar Township High School eleven. On Thanksgiving afternoon the Crafton High team will be here. The entire squad of 40 men will make the trip.

While the Tornadoes were idle all this week it is not likely that the season will be ended yet. If the weather remains favorable to the grid sport, the games will be continued into December. The Tornado outfit is anxious for more activity and with the high school season ending next Thursday, the date the Jones outfit decides will be open to it.

High school will play basketball December 1, 18 and 19. It is announced. Seven from the Pittsburgh district will be antagonists. The Cokers look better this year than ever before. Weiss will be back at guard, Lowery at center, McCormick and Harmon at forwards, with Jean George, "Spanner" Neid, Johnny Wilhelm and others also on deck fighting for a job. Competition is described as the life of trade, but it is going to prove to be the life of the Connellsville High School basketball season.

Fred Snell refereed his first game of the season in Mount Pleasant last night.

"Ab" Solsom, captain of the 1922 High School basketball team, played in Mount Pleasant last night and seems to have landed a permanent berth with that team.

A new combination may be tried out in the Dunbar Township game by High School this afternoon. Gillie has been working out at center and if he is successful there Endo may go back to his guard position.

If Connellsville gets into the county track meet next spring there are some local lads who should do well in the running events. Rusnak, Jean George and Joe May stand out among the fast runners on the football team and there may be others in the classes who would develop into tracksters.

Interest in collegiate football in this section is centered in the Carnegie-Notre Dame clash at Pittsburg this afternoon.

Two Inches Snow

Playing in two inches of snow, East Huntingdon High defeated German Township High eleven yesterday at McClellandtown, 6-0. Because of the cold and snow there were numerous fumbles, but all in all it was a good game. Kermitsky scored for East Huntingdon on an outside kick play. The lineup:

East Huntingdon 6; German Twp. 0.
Clark L. E. Cabralaste
McNally L. T. Christopher
Schechner D. G. Gribble
Hodgetts R. G. Smith
McMahon R. T. Freig
Bulue R. F. Ambrose
Sullivan R. P. Housaker
Koval Q. B. Deffenbaugh
Brooks (captain) R. H. Marshy
Kermitsky L. H. Tate

Federal taxes for the five world series games, as announced by the collector of internal revenue, amounted to $100,547.50.

The Chicago Cubs split $14,706.86, their share of the city series, into 26 parts, while the White Sox losers divided $10,804.86 among 21.

The Dixie series and the Mobile-Winnie series that followed netted the players collected enough money to tide them over the winter.

Memphis led the Southern Baseball Association in paid attendances in 1922, with a total of 250,400. The total for the entire league was 1,044,750.

NO-HIT GAME HURTS CHARLEY ROBERTSON

Spectacular Feat of White Sox Hurter Was Harmful.

From Player Willing and Anxious to Accept All Advice Offered He Began to Have Highest Respect for Own Judgment.

Very often some spectacular feat on the part of a major league ball player works to the detriment of that particular athlete.

If you would believe most of the Chicago White Sox, that is what happened to Pitcher Charley Robertson the past season.

Robertson, it will be recalled, pitched one of the greatest games ever turned in, a shutout of the hard-hitting Detroit club without a hit, not a player reaching first base.

Robertson pitched that wonderful game under the most trying conditions. During the greater part of the game the Detroit club protested the legality of his pitching, claiming that he was doctoring the ball.

In that game Robertson showed he had plenty of nerve, also the stuff to make a star pitcher. In all probably he would have had a much better season had he never pitched that perfect game against the Tigers.

According to the Sox players that perfect game rather spoiled Robertson's disposition. From a fellow willing and anxious to accept all the advice offered, he began to have more respect for his judgment of what should be pitched than Schalk, his star receiver.

Robertson failed to do anywhere near as well as expected, not nearly up to the standard of which he is capable. Perhaps, by next season, he will have forgotten all about that perfect game and hit his real stride.

COACH HEISMAN SHOWS HIS STARS

When Head Coach Johnny Heisman, Pennsylvania, wants a play run off, he shows the boys how to do it. He's shown here instructing some of his players how to run off one of the many plays he has been using this season.

Head Coach John W. Heisman of the University of Pennsylvania football squad undoubtedly holds the world's record for professional longevity.

This season at Penn marks his thirty-first year as a football mentor. The nearest approaches to this record have been made by P. J. Warner, who is now coaching at Pittsburgh; Alonso Stagg at Chicago and Doctor Williams, formerly at Minnesota, who have all coached over 23 years or more.

Heisman received his first experience as a college player at Brown university. He later transferred to the University of Pennsylvania, where he played left tackle on the Red and Blue varsity of 1890, and left end on the 1891 eleven, one of the greatest gridiron machines ever turned out at Penn.

It was at Oberlin College in Ohio that the veteran received his first experience as a coach in 1892. The eleven under his charge won eight straight games, including a victory over the University of Michigan, which boasted a great team that year.

Heisman's greatest successes were achieved in the South, however. He coached four teams at Clemson college, and it was his coaching ability that put that institution on the football map. In 1902 he won the southern championship for Clemson. During his four years there his teams lost only four games.

It was Heisman's showing at Clemson that caused him to be the most sought-after mentor in the South. He went to Georgia Tech in 1904, and remained there 10 years as head football coach.

In 1907 the Georgia Tech eleven defeated Pennsylvania, 41 to 0. It was this game that caused the Penn athletic officials to take notice of George's coaching work.

Last Day of General Debate of Ship Bill; Passage Is Expected

WASHINGTON Nov. 25.—The last day of general debate was ahead for the shipbuilding bill when the House convened today with the confidence of Republican leaders that it would pass by a safe margin next Wednesday unless after two days of searching discussion of the bill.

Assurances to this effect were taken to the White House by Representative Medill, Republican leader, at the close of yesterday's debate, although he did not say how many votes it would take to spare.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDRENAnimal Cookies

The cookie jar at our house is an aid to health. I make cookies of really nutritious substances, such as oatmeal, graham, and raisins. They are made attractive for the children by cutting them with fancy cookie cutters.

SOME SMILESGAVE THE RIGHT NAME

Tom and his little brother, Jack, were new pupils, and the master was about to enter their names upon his register.

"Now, my lad," he said turning to Tom, "what is your name?"

"Tom, sir," was the reply.

"You should say Thomas, my boy," said the master. "And what is your brother's name?"

"Jackas," replied Tom.

Margery's Help

"No, darling, I can't let you help me wipe the dishes, you break too many of them."

"But, mamma, that's a help, for you don't have so many to wash next time."

An Expensive Favor

Justweid—We'll have to get a refractor; it will save us money.

Mrs. Justweid—How so, dear?

Justweid—I notice that every time you cool a watermelon in Mrs. Next-door's ice chest you give her half.

The Better Way

He—That young one with its crying will drive me crazy yet! Can't you get him quiet?

She—I'll try singing to him.

He—Oh, never mind; Better let him cry!—London Answers.

Both Blameless

"If the operation hurts you, don't blame me, but blame your nerves."

"And if I hit you on the nose when it's over, don't blame me, but blame my tooth."—Munich Meggedorffer Blatter.

Good Business

"If you can sell more cars than you can get why do you employ salesmen?"

"We need a few bright young men to jolly customers who are standing in line."

We Can't See This, Either

"Pa," said Clarence.

"Be careful, young man, I'm in no humor for foolishness," warned his dad.

"Well," grinned Clarence, "I just wanted to ask you if, when an eye tooth got out, you had to buy glasses for it."

An Honorable Degree

Said the friend to the proud father of a college graduate who had just been awarded an A. M. degree:

"I suppose Robert will be looking for a Ph. D. next?"

"No, he will be looking for a J. B."—The Christian Evangelist (St. Louis).

Trimming on Hats

Stuffed balls in all colors of velvet are seen on hats. Fuchsia color is the newest, but many soft felt outing hats are trimmed with groups of all colored balls.

The Obvious Gesture

"If you were suddenly informed by a lawyer that you had fallen heir to a million dollars, what would you do?"

"I'd call for a stimulant," replied the impudent citizen. "Do you think I'm made of cast iron?"

FROM THE ORIENT

Dresses and Wraps Embroidered in Winsome Designs.

Arab's Costume Affords Color Inspiration: Originality and Charm Appeal to Fashion Devotees.

Fashions are steadily becoming more artistic than they have been for many long years. Color, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, is at last beginning to receive the attention which it deserves. Designers in their enthusiasm are searching in unusual and hitherto unthought-of places for inspiration.

A wave of Russian peasant art has just swept the country. Before that there was the Egyptian invasion, as well as the Chinese, the Japanese and the Spanish influence. Now something new has appeared in Paris in the form of dresses and wraps embroidered by Algerian native workers in designs taken from the Orient. These dresses have been put on the market by several designers.

Each dress is seemingly as extraordinary as its inspiration, but it is just its originality and Oriental charm that will appeal to the fashion devotee always in search of something different.

If one is seeking color inspiration a wonderful place to find it is in the Arab's costume. The brilliant colors that these dark-skinned people love and wear so well are mellowed by the scorched African sun until they have become fabrics of pure beauty. Even the tents of these desert people are striped in bold colors which have been mellowed by time and the elements to unusual and beautiful tones.

The BLIND MAN'S EYES

BY WILLIAM MACHAR & EDWIN BALMER
Illustrations by R.H. Livingstone

COPYRIGHT BY LITTLE BROWN AND COMPANY

A rich but universally respected western man is murdered in his automobile. The crime is accomplished with such stealth that even the chauffeur is not aware of it. The murderer, moreover, is a well-known business man, but not an intimate of the western man, had met death in an equally mysterious manner. There is absolutely no clue to the murder and no apparent motive.

Each Sunday a blind lawyer with that remarkable inner perception frequently developed by the sightless, while traveling on an eastbound train from Seattle to the coast, has described to him his confidential secretary, is suddenly assassinated in his berth. Some features of this case are more striking than others of the other cases.

There is no superdetective, no scientific investigator to deduce infallible theories fastening the guilty upon the right party or parties. Police efforts are futile and can succeed only in fouling the trail. The world is indeed perplexed and the press is increasing the complications.

The only tangible leads seem to point to one Philip Eaton, a mysterious young man who was aboard the train. There is also a suspicion that he may have been connected with the murder of the rich man in Seattle.

Apparently against all dictates of sense and safety, Eaton is made a guest in the home of Senator Corbin in Seattle. Here the westerner goes to an extraordinary degree and the big queries arise: Who is Philip Eaton? What is the part of this strange man's visitation or residence in Seattle? What is his connection in the danger of his presence in what way is Eaton connected with the sinister events which afterward occur in the San Joaquin home? What explanation is there for the sudden interest of Hartl's Santolino in the man who is believed to have made "in attempt upon her father's life?"

Here are mystery and romance, drama and anything else you can encounter. The outcome of events and solution of the mystery are as unexpected as anything you possibly can imagine.

CHAPTER I

A Financier Dies
Gabriele Warden—captain railroad director owner of mines and timber lands—a twenty-a-side pitcher at forty-eight one of the predominant men of the Northwest coast—passed with quick uneven steps the great wicker-furnished living room of his home just above Seattle on Puget sound. Twice within ten minutes he had used the telephone in the hall to receive the same reply—that the train from Vancouver, for which he had waited, had come in and that the passengers had left the station.

It was not like Gabriel Ward to show nervousness of any sort, Kondo the Japanese doorman who therefore had found something strange in his telephoning watched him through the portieres which shut off the living room from the hall.

Warden turned suddenly and pressed the bell to call a servant. Kondo entered the room, he noticed then that Warden's hand, which was still holding the watch before him, was not, give a name, will ask for me in a few moments. He will say he is called by appointment. Take him at once to my smoking room and I will see him there. I am going to Mrs. Warden's room now."

He went up the stairs. Kondo noticed still absently holding his watch in his hand.

Warden controlled his nervousness before entering his wife's room. She talked with him casually for a moment or so before she even sent away her maid. When they were alone, she suddenly saw that he had come to her to discuss some serious subject.

"Corra," he said, when he had closed the door after the maid, "I want your advice on a business question."

"A business question?" She was greatly surprised. He was one of those men who believe all business matters should be kept from their wives.

"I mean it came to me through some business—discoveries."

"And you cannot decide it for yourself?"

"I had decided it." He looked again at his watch. "I had quite decided it, but now—It may lead to some result which I have suddenly felt that I haven't the right to decide entirely for myself."

Warden's wife for the first time felt alarmed.

"You mean it affects me directly?" He seized both her hands in his and held her before him.

"Corra," he said, "what would you have me do if you knew I had found out that a young man—a man who four or five years ago had as much to live for as any man might—had been outraged in every right by men who are my friends? Would you have me fight the outfit for him? Or would you have me lie down?"

She stared at him with only pride then she was proud of his strength of mobility to fight, of the power she knew he possessed to force his way against opposition. Why, we would fight them!"

"You want me to fight them?"

"Of course."

No matter what it costs?" She realized then that what he was doing was very grave.

"Corra," he said, "I didn't come to ask your advice without putting this squarely to you. If I go into this fight, I shall be not only an opponent to some of my present friends, I shall be a threat to the—something they may think it necessary to remove."

She cried out, "You mean someone

As They Stopped, a Young Man of Less Than Medium Height, Broad Shouldered, and Wearing a Mackintosh Came to the Curb and Spoke to Warden man of less than medium height, broad shouldered, and wearing a mackintosh came to the curb and spoke to Warden. Corby did not hear the name, but Warden immediately asked of the man in the car he directed Corby to return home. The chauffeur did this but was obliged on the way to come to a complete stop several times as he met street cars or other vehicles on intersecting streets.

Almost immediately after Warden had left the house the doohob rang and Kondo answered it. A young man with a quiet and pleasant bearing inquired for Mr. Warden and said he came by appointment. Kondo ushered him into the smoking room where the stranger waited. In about forty minutes Corby drove the car under the porte-cochere again and got down and opened the door. There was no man inside the limousine. The chauffeur took in and saw Mr. Warden lying back quietly against the cushions in the back of the seat he was asleep.

Corby noticed that the curtains all about had been pulled down, he touched the button and turned on the light at the top of the car and then he saw that Warden was dead his cap was off and the top of his head had been smashed by a heavy blow.

The chauffeur drew back gasping.

Kondo held him on the steps cried and ran into the house calling for help.

Two other servants and Mrs. Warden who had remained nervously in her room ran down. The stranger who had been waiting now seen for the first time by Mrs. Warden, came from the smoking room to help them. He aided in taking the body from the car and helped to carry it into the living room and lay it on a couch he remained until it was certain that Warden had been killed and nothing could be done. When this had been established and further confirmed by the doctor who was called Kondo and Mrs. Warden looked around for the young man—but he was no longer there.

The news of the murder brought extra news upon the streets of Seattle, Tacoma and Portland at ten o'clock that night. Seattle stirred at once at the murder of one of its most prominent citizens stirred still further at the news that Warden had been a power in business and it came then as the second day's dispatches from the larger cities came in. It was a filled time at the realization—for so many said—that this was the second time such a murder had happened.

He stared at him with only pride then she was proud of his strength of mobility to fight, of the power she knew he possessed to force his way against opposition. Why, we would fight them!"

"You want me to fight them?"

"Of course."

No matter what it costs?" She realized then that what he was doing was very grave.

"Corra," he said, "I didn't come to ask your advice without putting this squarely to you. If I go into this fight, I shall be not only an opponent to some of my present friends, I shall be a threat to the—something they may think it necessary to remove."

THE DURANT SIX

THE simplicity of construction and ease of up-keep which have been attained in the Durant are preserved in the new six-cylinder car, in spite of its greater size and power.

Mechanically, this Six includes every distinguishing feature of Mr. Durant's four-cylinder car, which he describes as "Just a Real Good Car," and which has already demonstrated how very good "a real good car" can be.

Among these features is the Tubular Backbone in the frame (patent applied for), which relieves undue strain on the driving units and prevents squeaks and rattles in the body.

THE ANSTED MOTOR has been adopted for the Six. Its excellent performance combined with the Durant simplified chassis construction makes this car very satisfying to its owners.

A Car Without a Compromise

Panel Steel Body—Seats Four—$1445

To be really complete, a closed car must combine fine body work and appointments with a thoroughly dependable and highly efficient chassis. There can be no compromise in either equipment or mechanics.

When you examine the interior of the Jewett Coupe you will find that the equipment is indeed complete. The upholstery is both beautiful and lasting. Right at your hand you will find every accessory that makes closed car motoring a real luxury.

And, under the body, is a chassis of tremendous strength and performing ability. There you will find the smoothest of six-cylinder motors and driving parts that defy the severest tests of road punishment.

Such is the Jewett Coupe—a thing of beauty when parked in front of your home and the most reliable of companions on the highway. And, though you might expect to pay $800 or $1000 more, for these fine car luxuries, the price is $1445 f. o. b. Detroit.

BUNGALOW HAS INDIVIDUALITY

Design That Will Appeal to Those Wanting Something Different.

SUN PARLOR IS GOOD FEATURE

Five-Room City Type House That Is Modern In Every Respect—Compact Arrangement Adds to Comfort.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE Of City or any subjects pertaining to the construction of buildings or houses. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer he is without doubt the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No 102 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Practically everyone who builds a home except those who put up houses to sell wants and seeks individuality. Few people erect houses with any other expectation than that they will live in them many years. For this reason they select designs that are different from those in the neighborhood, for that is what lends distinction to the new home, it reflects the individuality of the owners.

Nothing is so unrealistic as a row of houses that all present the same appearance. Undoubtedly the reader has cast his eye along a street in which the homes were all built at the same time, by the same builder. There may be slight changes in the roof lines of the different houses, the porches may be larger or smaller and placed at different points, but the general effect has a sameness that leads to the thought that "here is a neighborhood of a people who have no ideas" or, rather, no ideas different from their neighbors, when it comes to building a home.

To meet this desire for something different from the general run architects have racked their brains called on their experience and education and have evolved from their minds so many different home designs that there is little if any excuse for the prospective builder to have anything but a house that is distinctive. Of course in following this idea one wants to pick a house that is so different from its neighbors that it looks out of place but it can be and must be to give the satisfaction that a home builder deserves an outstanding building.

The bungalow presents many opportunities for variety. Also, any of the different home building materials may be used in their construction. This gives a chance for a row of bungalows to be very dissimilar and still give harmony to the appearance of a street or neighborhood.

Such a bungalow is shown in the accompanying illustration. A study of the exterior lines will show how distinctive it is. There are few straight lines, but the angles and corners are graceful and, as a whole, it is harmonious. This home, of course, will cost more than the average bungalow of simple design but for those who want to put a little extra money into a home, it is a design that can be highly recommended. The sun parlor, with its five sides, in each of which there is a window, or windows and the brick pillars that apparently support it, is unusual. So are the roof lines and the entrance door at the side.

To realize how much room it has and its good size and convenient arrangement all that is needed is to study the floor plans that accompany the exterior view. Two steps up lead to a small platform and to the exterior door. Inside is a small vestibule out of which up three steps lead into a hall through French doors. To the right of the hall through a cased opening is the living room which is unusually large for this type of house—13 by 22 feet. At one end is a fireplace, which may be fitted with a gas grate, where gas is obtainable and on either side of the fireplace are book cases. Over each bookcase is a window while at the other end of the room are four windows. These windows, coupled with the double folding French doors leading to the sun parlor make the room light and airy. The sun parlor, too, is of exceptionally good size, being 10 feet wide and 15 feet long. These two rooms may be thrown together, making both available for entertainments. Also, what will appeal to the housewife is the opportunity for artistic furnishings and arrangement of them that this room arrangement affords.

To the rear is the dining room, another large room, 12 by 16 feet in dimensions, while at the rear is the kitchen, 7 by 11 feet 3 inches. A door leading out of the dining room connects with a short hall. At either end of this hall are two bedrooms, each the same size, 10 feet 3 inches by 12 feet 6 inches. Between the bed rooms and directly opposite the door into the dining room is the bathroom. A good sized closet is connected with each bedroom.

Another feature of this bungalow is the fact that its roof arrangement provides for a good sized attic, the dormer windows on either side making it practical to partition off rooms that may be used when necessary for bed rooms, or for playrooms for the children, or for any other purpose the housekeeper may desire. A basement extends under the whole of the house providing space for storage and for the heating plant and for the laundry equipment. The dimensions of the house are 26 by 48 feet with a 10-foot extension at the front for the sun parlor.

Considered from the viewpoint of usefulness combined with comfort that comes from large well lighted rooms and the convenience of the compact arrangement this bungalow design will be found very desirable by the home builder who wants a house that has "individuality."
